THE WOMAN I AM TODAY

Before my incarceration with a Life With-Out Parole sentence, my entire life was very quiet and uneventful. I was clueless about my many personal short-comings that needed changed. Totally blindsided by this complete turn in my life, I resolved to try to keep busy and making the best use of my imprisonment as I possibly can, availing myself of every self-help, growth-achieving and educational program that was available here at Muncy. Initially, participation in these first programs brought to me an epiphany, if you will, of the personal traits that were such a big disadvantage for me and ultimately played a part in my ending up in prison. I immediately set about changing everything that I could change. Throughout these 30-plus years, I have achieved immeasurable growth – personally through the self-help and other institutional programs, and educationally through the vocational programs and degrees. I was able to achieve.

Although these years have been very hard on my family, they have been productive and fruitful for me in the personal change/growth that I needed to achieve. I'm very blessed with the love and support of family, friends and many other good people whom my Higher Power had put into my life to help me through these years. With my Christian faith and my positive attitude, I have never lost hope that there surely is eventual release for me, just over the horizon, and there I will finally be able to share with the free world all of the good and wonderful changes I've found within myself.
